The St. Lawrence River Institute of Environmental Sciences, located in Cornwall, Ontario was established in 1994 as a non profit, charitable organization dedicated to research, education and innovation to protect our precious water systems. Located on the banks of the St. Lawrence River, the River Institute is emerging as a new model for a leading research centre that moves scientific inquiry beyond governments, non-local activist organizations and universities, and places it instead to the very heart of our communities.

The River Institutes Ecosystem conferences were first launched in 1993 by the University of Ottawa. The events were viewed as an opportunity to create a forum within which research specific to the St. Lawrence River and other ecosystems could be discussed, and knowledge shared. Today, the River Institute's Ecosystem Conferences have become important scientific environmental events, bringing together leading scientists, industries, water experts, consultants, government agencies, NGO's and students in Canada's Seaway City. Over 200 delegates attended last year event.
